

To enrich our readers' and students' understanding of Medicine through the lens of medical humanities, we invite our students, faculty members and alumni to send medical narratives and reflections to be published on our webpage.

Criteria:

The narratives/ reflections should be related to medical humanities- Philosophy, history, literature, sociology, economics, culture etc.

These may be in prose, poetry, photograph, image form.

The material may be in any Indian Language, but for languages other than English, Hindi and Marathi; English Translation should be submitted for readers' benefit.

Word limit: 1000 words

Font arial12

Image size: 1 mb

Personal identity and privacy of individuals must be respected and protected and sensitive matter should be handled with respect for the person described, portrayed or painted.

Medical Humanities division will not be responsible for the legal / ethical violation by the author during publication. The material will be further scrutiny and the final decision about publication will be that of the editorial team including right to edit or omit the matter considered sensitive or offensive in any way.

The matter posted before 20th of the month will be published on the 1st of the next month.

Address on which the write ups may be submitted: MHNarratives @kem.edu